Drifting about upon the sea of social neglect, Rachel was finally washed into the harbor of the juvenile court for temporary protection. But even here she can not find a mooring for her frail craft; as Rachel is one year too old for the court to handle officially. Seventeen in years—but scarce ten in body—she stands upon the very threshold of life already lost in a fog, straining her ears for some friendly voice to direct her path out into the great.

"What can you do?" asked one of the visiting iadles as she put a Thanksgiving basket overflowing with goodies, on the long white table in the detention room of the court.

Two round, wondering eyes looked up from the teeny-weeny creature with its oldish face. "Everything." she softly replied. "Keep house, wash and iron, and sew."

If she was just one year younger, the court could mark her course. If she just had Tr.B., instead of only being threatened with it, the fresh air camp could have kept her. Even if she was wayward, there would be a home for her with the Sisters of the Good Shepherd.

A fourth visitor, spectically standing apart, asked in doubting Thomas tones with a business-like manner: "Have you here any dresses you have made?"

Leaving the company, Rachel went the entire length of the institution closet. There she removed the top of a worn, gray telescope, and drew from the depths of the roomy, old-fashioned thing two dresses, freshly starched and ironed, both carefully folded. There was no haste in her movements, the visitors might ex-

"ROBERT MADDOX, Chairman."

Mr. Fitzgerald's answer was as follows:

"Clarksdale, Miss., Nov. 24, 1920, Robert Maddox, President National Bank, Attanta. Ga:

"Yours regarding my opinion of the usefulness of the Federal International Banking corporation in connection with Mississippi Delta Cotton Export and Trading company received. The company here is fully organized, with $500,000 capital, for trading and manufacturing purposes, with complete organization here and abroad for shipping cotton and tracing shipments throughout operations of manufacture, weighing, measuring and packing for markets of the world; with contracts already made with 54 mills of Czecho-Slovakia for manufacture of goods; with accurate and correct information as to capacity, physical and financial condition of each mill; with laws already passed in the name of its agents by the Czecho-Slovakia government for the protection of all property when in that country, as against all taxes, confiscation, riot and civil commotions; with insurance already procured in American companies covering all marine and warrisk and also eivil commotions, riots and confiscation by foreign governments; with textile experts now abroad who are styling the mills and making contracts for the sale and delivery of manufactured goods in advance of shipment of raw cotton, which contracts will be checked by the best English banks as to solvency of purchases; with raw cotton already pledged and in the hands of this company for manufacture of goods under said contract; with directorate composed of the heads of ten of the best financial institutions in this section of the country; with complete and efficient organization for the inspection and shipping of cotton with provisions for final American classification, it is my opinion that the Mississippi Delta Cotton Export Trading company presents to the Federal International Banking corporation can safely and securely advance the necessary financial aid. Oratory, Boston, Mass., who gives a dramatic reading of "The Cardinal-King," an interpretation of Lord Bulwer-Lytton's romantic drama, "Richelleu," at Goodwyn institute Monday night, is a singularly interesting figure.
"Richelleu, despite its numerous faults is a play with a strong element of appeal," stated Prof. Southwick while seated at a belated breakfast table at Hotel Peabody. "It has outlasted all the other Bulwer-Lytton plays even the once popular 'Lady of Lyons.' The author wrote it for his friend, the great Macraedy. We was friend, the great Macready, who was the first Richelieu. Since then it has been played by Booth, Barrett, has been played by Booth, Barrett, Warde and a host of others. Sothern essayed it for a while, but abandoned it for some reason.

"Booth was a fine, scholarly Richelleu. His performance was one evenly balanced whole. There are many chances to accentuate speeches, but Booth always avoided this temptation and the result is that his performance was a delight to every sense. Barrett, on the other hand, fung himself upon the high-lights with avidity and always made a bighit with the gallery. It was a favorhit with the gallery. It was a favor-ite role with Irving, who gave the same clever, sane presentation of "I knew Sir Henry Irving well and learned many interesting facts about him. On his last tour through the United States he had a juvenile with him that ran more to looks than

Finally he opened up with his own company and, meeting Sir Henry, told him that he intended Indorsed by Bankers.

"The Mississippi Delta Cotton Export Trading company desires to indors with all its vigor the organization of the Federal International Banking corporation, believing that such organization will furnish to the people of the South the financial means to carry out any export plan which can be safely engaged in. The Mississippi Delta Cotton Export Trading company's plan of export and manufacture for toll has been indorsed by the banking department of the state of Mississippi, the Bankers' association of Arkansas, the Bankers' association of Mississippi, the Bankers' association of Mississippi, the Bankers' club of Memphis, the Clearing House association of banks in Mississippi and all the local civic organizations and by the best and most responsible institutions in our territory. I have fully discussed this plan with several of the proposed directors of the Federal International Banking corporation, and they have expressed their opinion that the two corporations will work hand in hand and be of inestimable benefit each to the other. The banks of our territory and some of the largest banking institutions of New York city, as well as one of the branches of the federal reserve bank have indicated their intention to accept the trust receipts of the Mississippi Delta Trading company in place of warehouse certificates for cotton shipped, because this security is be-lieved to be perfect. "'Ah," said Sir Henry." It is an admirable ambition to strive to present the greatest character in all dramatic "'Just so,"' said the young fellow, relling with importance. "'Just swelling with importance. "Just so, I am sure I will make a great hit, I have a lot of new ideas on the subject."
"'Indeed?" remarked the great ac-"Indeed," remarked the great actor quietly."

"Yes, indeed. I have been devoting a lot of study to the matter. I have been looking up ancient Denmark and find that red was mourning in the days of Hamlet. I shall present my Hamlet robed entirely in red." "That will, indeed, be a new de-parture," Irving replied a quizzical light in his eyes. "No other actor has ever thought of that." "Just so! Just so. But there is "'Just so! Just so. But there is one thing that troubles me somewhat and that is Hamlet's remark: "Tis not alone my inky cloak, dear "'Don't let that trouble you, my dear boy," said Sir Henry turning away. Believed Substantial.

"Sir Henry was the very soul of kindness." continued Prof. South-wick. "There was an ambitious young girl at our school who was deeply interested in the drama. She had to make every penny count so when Sir Henry visited Boston on his last trip she was most anxious to see every performance, but did not have the wherewithal. Nothing daunted she applied and was given a position as extra. The first night "Dante" was presented. A brillian play of med-

Believed Substantial.

"Their reasons given for this are: First, the receipt is the receipt of an efficient established financial organization of $500,000 capital; second, the receipt is a promise of a certain consummation of the sale of cotton and a return in money within a specified number of months; third, because the shipmeat of this cotton shows a disposition on the part of the owner to finally dispose of raw material which is now of unknown value.

"I am grateful to you for this opportunity to express our approval of your corporation and at the same time to give you a partial outline of our corporation. Our contracts contemplate the shipment of several hundred thousand baies of cotton, not less than 10,000 of which will go out by Dec. 15. This cotton is now on hand, being made ready for shipment. Our organization is primarily for the benefit of the farmer, and we propose eventually to cover many other Southern states and by increase in capitalization to handle directly for the farmer, at the disposal of present low-grade cotton, any character of cotton, eliminating the middleman's profits. We propose to act jointly with and as agents for any and all associations or farmers and individuals.
